The MPA program is designed for full-time students to complete their degree within two academic years, or four semesters. Of the students who enrolled in the 2020–2021 academic year, 14 (38 percent) graduated within two years. An additional 6 students completed their studies in the third year, bringing the cumulative completion rate to 55 percent. By the fourth year, another 4 students had graduated, increasing the overall completion rate to 66 percent. These figures show that while some students complete the program within the expected two years, others require more time, possibly due to work, family responsibilities, or other personal commitments.

Graduates of the MPA program have pursued administrative and managerial careers in federal, state, and local government, as well as nonprofit organizations. Of the 28 students who graduated during the 2025–2026 reporting academic year, 27(96 percent) were confirmed to be employed within six months of graduation, while the employment status of one graduate remained unknown. Most graduates, representing 79 percent (22 graduates), secured positions in government or nonprofit organizations. This included 12 graduates employed in state government and 7 in local government. The remaining 5 graduates entered the private sector in roles outside research and consulting. None of the graduates reported pursuing further education, joining the military, or being unemployed.
